Integration of core data with petrophysical data

The document contains a table of sedimentological data, including facies and lithologies, with corresponding measured depth values. The table is followed by images of well logs and core samples, illustrating sedimentary structures and reservoir properties. The document focuses on the integration of core data with petrophysical data, such as conventional core analysis data, wireline log data, and FMI data, to enhance understanding of reservoir properties.